

Professor Amanda Croft

NHS Grampian Chief Executive

Amanda has over 25 years' experience in health and has held a number of senior positions.

She was appointed as Chief Executive of NHS Grampian in April 2019.

Amanda also carried out the role of Chief Executive on an acting and then interim basis during the 12 months prior to her permanent appointment to the post.

Amanda qualified as a Registered Nurse in 1992 at Sheffield and North Trent School of Nursing.

She moved to Scotland and NHS Grampian in 2000 and has worked in both Professional Leadership and General Management roles.

Amanda became a Visiting Professor at Robert Gordon University in August 2016.

Prior to taking on the role of Acting and Interim Chief Executive, she was Director of Nursing, Midwifery and Allied Health Professions for NHS Grampian.